Constitutional Prohibition of Slavery

The following is the official reading of the proposed amendment of the Constitution reported by the Judiciary Committee of the United States Senate

Resolved, by Congress (two thirds of both houses concurring,) That the following article be proposed to the Legislatures of the several States as an amendment to the Constitution of the United States which, when ratified by three-fourths of said legislatures shall be valid to all intents and purposes, as part of the said Constitution, namely

Article 13 section 1 Neither slavery nor involuntary servitude, except as a punishment for any crime whereof the party shall have been duly convicted, shall exist within the United States or any place subject to their jurisdiction.

Section 2 Congress shall have power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation

These are to the point, and they cover the whole ground The propriety of their adoption is another question But we do not see how any fair-minded man can dispute that this is a question which is bound to come before the American people for settlement at no very distant day, and that all the signs of the times indicate a rapid progress toward substantial unanimity in favor of the permanent disposal of slavery in this country The war has killed the institution, though begun by its upholders for its benefit How soon the process of extinction, if unaided by legislation, would work itself out, we cannot say, but is the plain fact that if the result is morally sure, then the evils and embarrassments of the transition period ought to be abridged as much as possible by a prompt legalization of the fact and a conformation thereto of our whole political system The President's proclamation is a military application of this principle, which answers for the time of war, but is insufficient for permanent enjoyment Any congressional provisions would be liable to constant fluctuations, and, if they were not, might be overruled by the Supreme Court, involving prolonged and dangerous discussions

As much then, as we have always desired to confine the whole energies of the nation to the prosecution of the war, until it ended in the entire suppression of the rebellion, we see no objection to the immediate adoption, on the part of Congress, of this constitutional amendment It has been necessitated, equally with the more purely military measures, by the course of the rebels, and it can be attended to without any distraction There is no need of any embittered discussion—certainly not in Congress, whose duty is only to initiate the measure Nor need there be any discussion among the people If the mind of the masses is not yet made up on the question, it surely will be in the course of the year or two in which the proposition will be before the several States The progress of events will clearly make known the duty of the American people in the premises by demonstrating in the sight of all, whether slavery is or is not doomed to inevitable destruction If it is, the nation will accept the fact and alter the Constitution accordingly. If it is not they will let the Constitution stay as it is Those who oppose the measure in its present stage, simply disregard the intelligence and deny the sovereignty of the loyal millions—If some few States refuse to cast their vote upon the proposition, the blame is wholly theirs, and should not be allowed to arrest a reform upon which the vast majority are determined That the constitutional number of States will give their sanction to the proposed amendment, we cannot doubt—at any rate it is nothing but right that they should have the privilege of deciding the matter for themselves

The above from the Boston Journal, we quote because it expresses our own views, and we do not see how objection can be reasonably made to it The policy therein suggested is forced upon the people of the loyal States by the rebellious action of slaveholders. They have opened the way to national freedom, and have done what no northern party or election or peaceable movement could have accomplished. They have sealed the doom of their own institution, and have made its continued existence incompatible with the life of the Republic and with the safety of the Union. The responsibility they madly assumed—the duty of doing right belongs to us—the benefits flowing therefrom will bless the country and the world In this connection, we will add, that when Mr. Arnold, of Illinois, introduced recently, a resolution expressive of the sense of the House of Representatives that the Constitution should be so amended that slavery might be prohibited, it was adopted by 78 yeas to 58 nays, among the nays appears the name of the Representative from Oregon, with those of Fernando Wood, and other Democrats. Among the supporters of the resolution, are found all the republicans and nine of the Border State men, who think more of the Union than they do of protecting slavery We confess that we are surprised at finding Mr McBride where the report places him We think a majority of those who elected him, will wonder that he could not vote for a loyal and just expression of duty, and in favor of which the names of all the representatives from California are found recorded Of course, if his vote is correctly reported, he has a right to take his own position, but it is, and shall be our privilege to criticise it, when we deem it opposed to the welfare of the country, and at variance with the opinions and hopes of the patriotic and free people of the State and of the Union. The pretended support of the Government and love of the Union which are ready, in obedience to a weak and time-serving policy, so to conduct public affairs as to save slavery, have lost their charm among loyal men, and will be repudiated as they justly deserve to be

The Senators' Votes

EDITOR OREGONIAN March 28 1864

In your paper this morning you suggest a new complaint against the Oregon Senators because they recently vote against instructing to investigating a grievance alleged by the negroes, who were not allowed to ride in the City Railroad Cars I did not see how they deserve blame, even if they had happen to vote on the Democratic side and against the so called Union men It seems to me the Senate ought not during the war to spend time in protecting negro rights if such you call them, and I therefore approve of the votes of the Oregon Senators as

A DOUGLAS DEMOCRAT

We have but few words in reply to the above It is the duty of the Senate at all times to protect any rights which are assailed, and no man is worthy of a seat there, who, under any circumstances, closes the way to a just remedy for alleged wrong. It may be democratic to say, that negroes have no rights which a white man is bound to respect, but it surely is neither Republican nor patriotic It may be democratic for the Oregon Senators to vote with Powell and Salisbury, against every Union member, but their action will never be justified by a majority of their constituents It may be democratic to ask negroes to fight by whole brigades, in defence of the Government, but it is very unmanly, ungrateful and unjust while they are doing so, to treat them with brutal indifference. We neither envy nor respect the lack of generous feeling or the mean politics, which will justify such treatment of those who are thought fit to wear the nation's uniform, and shed their blood in its behalf Fortunately the American Senate has nobler men, than those who voted with the Oregon members, and when an investigation it was found that a colored surgeon in the service of the Government, had been kicked off the cars and brutally treated, an order was adopted by Congress, which will hereafter stop the wrongs, which the Oregon Senators refused to investigate If they in the future, derive any pleasure or advantage from the record which, in this matter, they have made for themselves, they are welcome to it

FOR VICE PRESIDENT.—Several eastern papers are urging the claims of Andrew Johnson for the second place on the Union ticket certainly he is eminently deserving of any honor to which patriotism and merit can give a claim But at the same time if Mr Lincoln is the chief candidate, as seems now likely, beyond any reasonable doubt, what shall be done with Mr Hamlin? He has borne himself with dignity, fidelity and universal satisfaction His influence in the North and East has been most salutary and effective, though it cannot be denied that the position of the fearless and patriotic Johnson, like that of very many others in the Border, gave to the Government an immense magazine of strength, which the people of all the Union thoroughly and justly appreciate and his recent manly and decided action in regard to the utter extinction of slavery, stands out in noble contrast with the petty and wavering course of some timid northern men, who seem to lack the courage or the principle to do right, even when the way is so clearly marked out by Providence, that no one but a knave or a fool can refuse to follow it. Truly, we admire Andrew Johnson he deserves the hearty love of all loyal men, and he will get it whenever the opportunity is offered

A GENUINE "BIG THING".—During the last session of Congress some lobbying was done about the House for the purpose of putting through the claim of one George W Johnson, of Washington Territory, who alleged that he had been damaged in the amount of $12,000 by the condemnation for military purposes of an acre or so of land belonging to a donation grant of 640 acres which he had located at the lower cascades of the Columbia river, W T The damage had been originally assessed at $5,000 by a military board of which Rufus Ingalls now a Brigadier General, was the President, and the Government occupied the land, but subsequently abandoned it Johnson, who is now a resident of Boston, claims that a town site was there taken possession of by the Government, and he now claims $500,000, adding interest for nine years to his original claim, probably W H Farrar of Oregon, is acting as agent for the claim, which now before the Court of Claims, and, what is more it is likely to go through, giving the man the enormous sum of half a million of dollars for a small parcel of wild land

The above from the Sacramento Union may be all true, but if it is we wonder what sort of proofs are necessary to secure a great wrong, in the Court of Claims? Fortunately for the Government, if any such outrageous allowance is made, the matter of getting the grand cash depends on Congress, and we hardly think that the parties concerned will be able to buy members enough to get any such appropriation.

DON'T BE UNEASY.—The impotent editor of the Review has a whole column of wild and wanton prophecies in regard to the Union Convention, which are as absurd and frivolous as that kind of talk can be He sets up nearly every prominent man in the State, as being ambitious of a nomination, and then, for his own amusement, as if the poor victims had no feeling, knocks them down unceremoniously with nothing but hard words! His sport being harmless, nobody ought to be troubled, if the performer is only happy We presume every candidate will go up to his fate to morrow, just as fearlessly and full of hope, as though the Review had not "bounced" him so unmercifully if there are any who don't like to run the risk, the Review's wise counsels may spare their pride, and by prompting their withdrawal, put them in good condition for future fight

CONSOLIDATION.—The Sacramento Union says the Senate's Committee on Public Lands have reported a bill to consolidate several surveying districts, putting Idaho with Colorado, and Washington with Oregon The plan is a wise one, and ought to succeed, though Oregon will protest against it most devoutly, if the present Surveyor General of Washington is permitted to come back to the State which desires to see him no more forever

SICK OF IT.—A North Carolina paper says "the great majority of the people of that State are almost sick to death with the monstrous and infamous despotism of Davis, and his red handed confreres."

HOUSE VOTE ON THE ABOLITION OF SLAVERY.—The following was the resolution offered by Mr Arnold, of Illinois, in the House of Representatives March 15th

Resolved, That the Constitution of the United States should be so amended as to abolish slavery in the United States wherever it may now exist, and to prohibit the existence of slavery in every part thereof forever

A motion to lay the resolution on the table was disagreed to by a vote of 58 against 79 The resolution was then adopted by the following vote the Border State men in the affirmative being in italics

YEAS—Messrs Ames Ashley Ancona Arnold Ashley Bailey, Baldwin (Mass) Barker Beaman Blair (Va Va) Alex Brown (Pa) Bundy Burr Cobb Colfax Cravens Creswell Davis (Md) Davis (N Y) Dawes Dixon Donnelly Driggs Dumont Eckley Edwards Eliot Farnsworth Frank Gooch Gurley Hale Harding Higby Hooper Hubbard, (Conn) Hubbard (Iowa) Hulburd Hutchins Julian Kelley Kellogg (Mich) Kernan Longyear Marvin, McClurg Miller, (N Y) Morehead Morrill Morris (N Y) Amos Myers L Myers Nixon Odell Orth Patterson Perham Pike Pomeroy Price, Rice (Mass) Rice (Me) Rollins (N H) Schenck Sloan Shannon Smithers Sperry Stevens, Thayer Tracy Upson Van Valkenburg Washburn (Ill) Washburn (Mass) Whaley Williams Wilder Wilson, Windom—80

THE KINGDOM OF COTTON OVERTHROWN.—The Richmond Enquirer, having sorrowfully come to the conclusion that cotton is not king and that foreign nations cannot be coerced by withholding it, and that the policy of burning it is ruinous, now proposes that the staple be sold for pork, beef, corn and whisky

THE SPECULATION COLLAPSED.—And down came the speculation! In the days of drouth, and of fear and trembling for those who live from hand to mouth, there was intense anxiety But those days have passed The heavens have poured out their exuberant waters, and the thirsty earth has drunk them in, and from this time forth we may rest assured that no famine can visit this fecund land. So down comes the speculation! And flour will be cheap, and grain will rule at figures that will enable man and beast to live For yesterday the great regulator of the earth, the moisture which is gathered up in vapors and held in clouds, revisited our fields, launched its deadly excellency against our hills and valleys, and gave full assurance of returning plenty And down went the speculation! And there was weeping and wailing amongst the men who nightly prayed that there would be no rain! But they prayed in vain, and our honest burghers, those who eat and pay their way and their taxes and go to church, hailed yesterday's storm, even though last unseasonably, with supreme satisfaction They felt that however the speculators might "put up" their stores on hand, a greater power had made provision for plenty of stores, and that the turn the weather had taken would give everybody a chance to turn the tables on them. For hay that two weeks since was held at sixty dollars a ton, was now a drug in the market at twenty five And down went the speculation! For how could Michael Reese realize large profits on his flour investments if bread did not bring famine prices, and what would become of Friedlander's great bread stuff "corner?" In this we may see the hand of Providence Had Michael and his allies kept aloof from the speculation, the drouth would have continued, but it was asking too much for the Season to conform to the wishes of those curious exploiters in breadstuffs We presume nobody will now deny that we are to have an abundant season, that the crops will be plentiful and that peace and good will shall be our portion this whole blessed year No body for the speculation has collapsed, and those unfortunate wights who invested their money in it are out and injured We feel so sorry for them that we can scarcely write a fitting consolation, but in the words of the poet we will say

> He who dabbles much in food,
> May perchance a fortune find,
> But who he "jobs in what we eat"
> The Lord may send his speculation "higher or a rate," and vouchsafe a rain-shower accompanied with lightning that will knock his twenty dollar pieces stone blind

Then up goes the corner —S. F. Call.

AN INTERESTING INCIDENT.—The following extract is taken from a private letter by a lady of St Louis

On our way home from the country I saw something which would have interested you, I am sure One of the first negro regiments recruited in this State since the President's Proclamation, came down on the train with us, and when we got to St Charles, where we were obliged to take a ferry boat to cross the Missouri river, the raw recruits were all crowded on the boat, together with the other passengers I was in the midst of them, and not far from me were a few white men, evidently secessionists and "poor trash" talking in loud tones about the "d d abolitionists," "the nigger soldiers," &c For some little time they continued uninterruptedly, but suddenly, as if by some given signal, these five hundred recruits struck up "John Brown," and every thing was drowned in their triumphal song I myself never heard anything which moved me to more enthusiasm, and at the close of each verse—"And we go marching on,"—I assure you that my heart was beating so I could scarcely breathe I don't know whether the men themselves intended it to drown the talk of the miserable creatures who were talking treason, or whether it was simply a spontaneous psalm of rejoicing over their newly acquired freedom,—but at all events, it was singularly appropriate —Transcript

A NEW WAY OF EXPRESSING CONTENT.—There must have been a remarkable change of opinion in Bradford county, Pennsylvania, within a few years Not long ago, when the Bank of Pottstown issued its five dollar notes, James Buchanan was so popular there that his portrait was engraved upon one corner of the bill, and nobody thought of defacing it in the remarkable style that has prevailed since the beginning of the war A banker who is a curiosity hunter, has shown us a bundle of thirty eight of these five dollar notes, in twenty of which the word "Traitor" is written across Buchanan's forehead, in others, the letter "T" is branded, on one the following words appear "Give him his deserts" on another is written, 'Ye ould divil," and still another bears this inscription "False to his country and to his God, but true to the Democratic party." Some ingenious individuals, at a loss to express their contempt in words, resort to symbols, one has drawn a copperhead snake wriggling in the mouth of Buchanan, another decorates the head with a cap and bells and a third incloses the neck with in a noose which is attached to a gibbet These curious methods of indicating contempt are not of a very high order, but they show how Buchanan is now regarded in that part of Pennsylvania in which once he was so great a favorite —New York Evening Post.

TRADE WITH VICTORIA.—Three gentlemen from Victoria, consignors of goods to this city by the clipper Jenny Jones, which is now due, arrived in the city yesterday, overland The clipper left Victoria on Sunday, the 20th inst She will bring 150 tons of freight, and about 50 passengers In a conversation with one of the gentlemen, Mr Fellows, we learned that this small clipper is nothing to what is required, for the transportation of freight already consigned for Portland Besides large quantities of salt, there is an extra amount of iron, hardware crockery, glass ware, etc, for which a good sized steamer or vessel is needed to ply regularly, on the line At the present time it is impossible to obtain a suitable craft in Victoria, for the reason that there are no "American bottoms" there and this not being a port of entry English vessels could not pass Astoria, to come here, but would be obliged to transfer their freights to river steamboats thereby incurring additional expense, that would reduce the advantage Now, again, we see the importance of Portland being made a port of entry In case it was so, such vessels as the Otter and Thames, would be available to our Victoria neighbors—Portland owning no crafts—and we could establish a trade that would eventually be of great magnitude, and result to our decided advantage Victoria is over stocked with the finest of English fabrics and wares, all materials of which we are in constant need, and which can be procured at a better rate than in San Francisco, or anywhere else, because Victoria has the advantages of being a free port The account would also be kept well balanced in our favor, by a demand for our live stock, our fruit, and produce, there being a large marine force in that port constantly, in addition to the mining regions, which must be supplied

NEW STEAMSHIPS FOR OREGON.—The want of better steamships for the Oregon trade has been felt to a very great extent, and we have tried to induce our people to enter into a project for the construction of two or three, such as would be alike creditable and profitable As no movement has been made in the matter we presume it is decided to go by default. In such case we are gratified to learn by a letter from Mr Holliday of San Francisco, to Messrs Richards & McCraken of this city, that two new steamers, specially adapted for this trade are on the wave in New York, and so near complet that we will have them for the coming fall t d Mr Holiday writes that he has be n ing over on get suitable steam t s line but owing to the urgent dem t by Government s has been im re sure any, and it not should the c d for the service before the they would most likely be taken pleased to receive this exce e same time regret that so n capitalists are not engaged in t ise for it must be admitted that it w e a good investment.

CITY TICKET.—At the Union Mass Meeting last evening, held at the Court House, J C. Carson was chosen Chairman and S A Moreland and E D Backenstos, Secretaries The following city ticket was nominated

For Mayor—Henry Failing
Recorder—M F Mulkey
Treasurer—H B Morse
Assessor—D W Williams
Marshal—Wm Grooms

About 200 votes were cast The nomination of Councilmen was postponed, until Friday, the 1st of April, when the voters will meet in their respective Wards, and make their nominations

TELEGRAPH TO VICTORIA.—We learn that arrangements have been made which will secure the establishment of a telegraph from this city to Victoria at as early a day as possible A liberal charter has been granted by the Colonial Legislature and as the work will be managed by the California State Telegraph Company, there is no doubt that it will be accomplished promptly and well

FENIAN BROTHERHOOD.—A Circle of the Fenian Brotherhood was organized last evening at the School House, corner of Third and Pine streets The officers were chosen as follows Circle, John Ward, Secretary; J H. Egan, Treasurer, P F Cary, Committee of Safety, Will O'Hara, James Lamb, B Berry; Committee on Business, John Ward

THE LADIES SOCIABLE.—We mention by request that the Sociable of the ladies of the Presbyterian Society, announced to take place this evening will be postponed for one week, on account of inclement weather, and prevailing colds which afflict many families in the city

RISE OF THE WILLAMETTE.—The Willamette river has risen a foot and a half, since Sunday morning, up to last evening The stage of water at Oregon City was unchanged when the Senator left yesterday, and the rise is confined to points below the Clackamas

WORK ON THE MARIA.—The work of raising the Maria progressed slowly yesterday, waiting for the Almatia to clear The boxes were put in place, and chains passed under the steamer, ready for a good lift today.

THE PUBLIC SQUARE.—About ten days fair weather would enable the contractor to finish the grade of the Public Square The fencing lacks but a little of being finished—that is it would, if it didn't rain all the time The plank, for the side walk, is being submerged

IN WAITING.—The steamer Express is kept in readiness at the Pioneer wharf, to receive any freights for the upper Columbia, that cannot be taken by the Hunt, and by this arrangement the wharf is kept free of freight

RETURNED.—Mr J Best returned to this city yesterday, with his pack train in a bad condition having tried for several days to get to the Dalles by the trail He reports it impossible to get that way during the wet weather.

ERRATA.—In the statement yesterday of the amount of internal revenue, Multnomah County was put down at $23,493 94, instead of $53,493 94, as it should have been.

GREEN PEAS and California cabbage were brought up on the last steamer They are well suited to the palate of Oregonians, at this particular time.

Mrs. Thayer has been giving lectures at the Dalles, since she left the dramatic company of Mr. Waldron, on the subject of "The Duty of Woman to the Country." Her lectures are highly spoken of, and were repeated at the Congregational Church, to crowded audiences. She contemplates giving one in this city, previous to her departure for California, overland, visiting Salem, and other places.

THEATRICAL.—Mrs. Julia Dean Hayne, Miss Frances R. Gass, Mr. G. B. This is to certify that I have used DETTER'S HAIR RESTORATIVE, and I take great pleasure in recommending it to the public as a safe and effectual preparation for the restoration of the Hair. I was nearly bald when I commenced the use of it, and after using two bottles, I find it has produced a fine, healthy growth of hair, and that, too, in less than two months. The Burial at Gettysburg.

The following noble lyric is from the new periodical, the United States Service Magazine:

A voice as of the ocean surge!
I see a mighty nation tread,
With banners drooped and funeral dirge,
Within the city of the dead.
On yonder slope but yesterday,
Clashed steel with steel, and breast with breast;
And tossed the battle's thick-red spray
O'er hosts who now in silence rest.

Kneel, motherland! in broken prayer,
To kiss the dear, the holy ground.
Ben strong men weep like children, there,
Spelling in vain each nameless mound;
And far, by Erie's western deep,
Or mid the solemn woods of Maine,
The grey sire dreams in troubled sleep,
Of one who comes not home again.

Sworn of the Lord!—but cry of woe
From many a bleeding wound shall start—
Rest in thy scabbard, rest! Ah, not
While traitors stab a mother's heart!
As breaks thy thunder's gathered roar,
I hear—I hear a nation's cry,
From stormy cliff and sounding shore:
No Peace, no Peace, till treason die!

No! by the sacred tolls of all
Who bid with no content but truth
The stones of our Cyclopean wall;
No! by a people's silent tooth;
No! by the red blood crimb hath spilt;
No! by the heirdom of the free!
Bare the bright sword, swear on the hilt,
These years of wrong no more shall be!

Chant ye not now the Requiem sad,
Lift ye the War-song clear and high;
Sing till it stir the sleepers glad
Who 'neath these crowded hillocks lie.
Sing, motherland! ye peaks that bloom
With wreaths of the eternal snow;
Ye primal forests, in whose womb
Navies of oak and iron grow.

Sing, prairies rich with nobler grains,
Of bearded men, of freeborn souls!
And thou, great river, through whose veins
The life-blood of our heroes runs;
More than the yellow tide's wave
Thy banks shall gleam with deathless fame.
Sing, with thy tornado, of the brave
Who died to keep a nation's spotless name!

THE ATTORNEY A BLACKGUARD.—Touching felicious endings, a Western correspondent supplies a legal incident that will be appreciated we know.

Several years ago, when one of our present Justices of the Supreme Court was District Attorney of a neighboring county, rather a laughable incident occurred as related by himself. Court week he used to occupy a bed-room at Lewis' Hotel, the principal hotel at the county seat. He had his books and papers in his room. Here he drew his indictments, and in important cases he used to direct the sheriff to bring the people's witnesses for preliminary examination.

It happened at one session that he had an important murder case coming on. The celebrated General (now Judge) Nye was counsel for the defendant. He examined the witnesses as usual and took careful minutes of what they would state on the stand. He found that a lady was the most important witness for the people, and he also discovered that she was rather excitable and highstrung, and a fast talker.

Apprehensive of trouble, he thought he'd caution her a little. So he told her when she came on the stand not to talk. "Pay attention," says the District Attorney, "to my questions, and answer them, but don't talk; and when Nye comes to examine you, you must be very careful and not get excited, for he's a great blackguard, and will try to get you mad. Just pay attention to his questions and answer them, no matter how often repeated, or how apparently silly, but don't allow him to get you off your balance."

The District Attorney and the witness parted for the night. The next day the case came on. The District Attorney called his witness, and she went through her evidence on the part of the people with perfect admiration, and he handed her over to Nye.

He went along awhile very smoothly. Pretty soon he began to crowd her, and she began to "flare up;" he crowded her the more, and soon they had a regular breeze. Finally having lost self-control, she broke out on him as follows:

"I won't answer any more of your contemptible questions; you're a nasty, dirty blackguard, and the District Attorney told me so."

After the laugh had partially subsided, Nye said:

"What! the District Attorney told you? When and where did he tell you?"

"He told me all last night in his bedroom."

The scene that followed this answer may be readily imagined. In the midst of the shout, Nye told the witness that she might "pass."

"Cudjo's Cave."—The following extract from Mr. Trowbridge's new book, "Cudjo's Cave," describes the changes wrought by the war:

How many a beloved "good-for-nothing" has gone from our streets and firesides to reappear far off in a vision of glory! The wild fellows know not their comrade; the mother knows not her own son. The stripling, whose outgoing and incoming were so familiar to us—impulsive, fun-loving, a little vain, a little selfish, apt to be cross when the supper was not ready, apt to come late and make you cross when supper was ready and waiting—you never guessed what nobleness was in him? His country called and he rose a patriot. The fatigue of marches, the hardships of camp and bivouac, the hard fare, the injustice that must be submitted to, all the terrible trials of the body's strength and the soul's patient endurance—these he bore with the superb buoyancy of spirit which denotes the hero. Who was it that caught up the colors, and rushed forward with them into the thick of battle, after the fifth man who attempted it had been shot down? Not that village lager, who used to go about the streets dressed so shabbily? Yes, the same. He fell, covered with wounds and glory. The rusty and seemingly useless instrument we saw hang so long idle on the walls of society, none dreamed to be a trumpet of sonorous note until the soul came and blew a blast. And what has become of that white-gloved, perfumed, handsome cousin of yours, devoted to his pleasures, weary even with those—to whom life with all its luxuries had become a bore. He fell in the trenches of Wagner. He had distinguished himself by his daring, his hardihood, his fiery love for liberty. When the nation's alarum beat, his manhood stood erect; he shook himself: all his past frivolities were no more than dust to the mane of this young lion. The war has proved useful if only in this, that it has developed the latent heroism in our young men, and taught us what is in humanity, in our fellows, in ourselves. Because it has called into action all this generosity and courage, if for no other cause, let us forgive its cruelty, though the chair of the beloved one be vacant, and bed unslept in, and the hand cold that penned the letters in that sacred drawer, which cannot even now be opened without grief.

A HEROIC RECORD.—A Western journal, in commenting on the bravery of Pilot Allen, of the Von Phul, who remained at his post, though the captain and another person were killed in the wheel house near him says:

"In fact, to my certain knowledge, not a pilot of the Mississippi Association of Pilots, naval or acting in a civil capacity, has ever yet deserted his wheel in the hour of danger. All honor to the brave few for it. They are in the most exposed, but at the same time most important position on a steamer. Let the pilot drop his wheel, and sure destruction awaits passengers, officers, crew, and steamer. The boat would float right into the jaws of death, but for the guidance of his eye and sure hand."

Mankind is the most perverse and unreasonable beins uv the humen family. While they assent 2 a principle, they never put it into praktis of it bars hard unto em ez indi widjitles, to wit:

This ijee bleezed my congregashun vastly and fifteen or twenty uv the strongest proposed that I should put it in 2 praktis, jes 2 shoo the world that the grait doktrin cood be karid out best ez wel in the North ez in the South. To which I assented 2-wunst, and at the next biznes metin the folerin plan wuz adopted. The trile wuz held, the Jinzishin maid, and I wuz happy at bein the unsibel instroomeent uv plantin the grait instroomeent on Northurno sile.

But allas, owin 2 the perversity uv the humane mind, aforsaid, it dident wurk. Old Jon Podhammer razed his 600 with the geitest eeze, while Bil Sniffles, who wuz a work-in fur him fur 12 dolers a munth, coodent fech it. Podhammer went over to Bile kabin the nex mornin, and sez he, "Wilyum, frum this time hens4th, and forever, yoo air my man. "And we air yoor slaiv?"

DISSENSIONS AND PLOTTINGS AMONG THE REBELS.—A Washington letter to the Tribune draws this picture of the wretched state of affairs within the limits of the rebel Confederacy:

Richmond offers to-day a spectacle well calculated to surprise people unacquainted with the real character of the rebel influence, and with the various elements of dissolution. Angry recriminations, hostile denunciations, bordering on anarchy, are to be found in every part of the South, undermining the power of the Government and secretly preparing its overthrow. Every branch of power, my informant writes me, is now openly and boldly assailed by the people. The Congress, arbitrary in its laws, reckless in its propositions, audacious in its undertakings, unscrupulous in its spirit, is becoming every day more and more unpopular with the masses. The sweeping financial measures it advocates are preeminently distasteful. So are the bills on conscription and substitutes. People are grumbling, and dissatisfaction is discernible everywhere.

The proposition to enlist nine-tenths of the producers, which would leave to the women, children and negroes the task of clothing and feeding the army, is pronounced to be perfectly impracticable, if not decidedly absurd. The cultivator of the soil is particularly angry at a measure which seems directed against himself. "Our danger," said one, the other day, in my presence, "is not that Congress will do nothing, but that it will do too much. If the farmer is taken from the plow, the Confederacy will be overrun, not by Lincoln's army, but by starvation." These words are but a very mild specimen of the opposition encountered by Congress among the people. In some places the complaints against its proceedings are far greater and more dangerous. They would, in any other country, and with any other people, be construed as premonitory symptoms of an impending revolution.

The leaders of the rebellion perfectly understand the character and designs of the opposition, and are decided to confront it, not in their proper name, but in the name of the pretended necessity of the country, of whose wants and wishes they assume to be the only and supreme expositors. Their device is: "We must risk all—offer all—if we do not wish to loose all." With this they expect to fright the people, and to lend them, through fear, to do what they choose. Disdaining the precepts by which they have hitherto professed to be governed, their intention is obviously to turn a deaf ear to the representations of the people, and to transform the Government into a dictorial power, which will have a supreme and indisputable control over the will of the citizens.

THE UNION MOVEMENT IN ARKANSAS.—Arkansas will go straight forward in the work of reconstruction. She ranks among her citizens many of the most sterling Union men to be found in any of the rebel States. And they are as resolute as they are loyal. Those now in Washington have given martyr-proof of their uncompromising patriotism and return to their posts of duty and danger clothed with full authority to bring back their commonwealth to its former position in the sisterhood of States. Others will follow, as the Army moves forward; and, perhaps, before the war is formerly closed, more than three-fourths of the revolted States will be back again, by the vote of the people, with free Constitutions, and with better thoughts and more patriotic purposes for the future.—Albany Journal.

Any person having made bona fide settlement and improvements which are embraced within the boundaries of any lot prior to the 1st of May, 1864, upon furnishing the necessary proof of the fact to the Register and Receiver, on or before the day of sale, shall have the right—restricted to one lot—to bid for and purchase the same at the appraised value thereof; but any party who may challenge the bid on the ground that the settlement and improvement are not bona fide, shall have the privilege to compete with such settler in bidding, and if the highest bidder, the bid of the contestant will be admitted to record upon his tendering in payment the sum bid by him, the contest to be determined after the close of the sale.

Instructions as to the mode of conducting the sale and disposing of conflicts will be timely placed in the hands of the Register and Receiver.

Plats of the town-site of Port Angeles will be open to inspection of the public, at the office of the Register and Receiver at Olympia, and at the office of the Collector of Customs at Port Angeles, after the 1st day of March, 1864.
